THE LAST
KEY

You are Tony Vercasso, better known as The Don. Feared. Respected. Untouchable. When you hand off your personal wallet, loaded with millions in Bitcoin, to a young runner, it is supposed to be a simple job. The deal is set to go down in a nightclub backroom, far from cameras and cops. But things go sideways.

The kid gets ambushed before the trade happens. The wallet disappears. He wakes up in an alley, dazed and broken. Hours later, he drags himself into your pool party, bleeding and empty-handed.

Now the clock is ticking. Word travels fast on the streets, and your enemies are listening. They think you slipped. They think you're vulnerable.

You are not.

From neon-lit clubs to rooftop hideouts, from hacker dens to cartel compounds, you will tear through this city to get back what is yours. This is not about the wallet anymore. It is about respect. About control. About making sure everyone remembers who runs these streets.

The last key is out there.

And you are going to find it.

THE LAST KEY

In a city built on secrets and silence, trust is the most dangerous currency

A woman in a black, form-fitting bodysuit with a pink floral trim at the bust and black thigh-high boots stands in a club. She is holding a silver tray with two dark drinks. In the background, a woman in a red and green outfit is dancing on a stage. A woman's legs in high-heeled shoes are visible in the foreground on the right. The scene is lit with vibrant purple and blue lights.

SINNERS

Vip Room

The Sinners VIP room, called the Sin Chamber, is the place where the runner was wasted and robbed of his bitcoins. He was too drunk to notice what was happening as it happened fast and quiet, inside a room where no one pays attention to anything except the show. The runner thought he was safe, but the Sin Chamber became the spot where everything went wrong and the whole story began.

THE SOUL
PRIORITY

But the boy wasn't lying. He didn't steal anything... he was after something else. By the end of the night, both sides would find out the truth: the bitcoins were stolen by someone nobody expected.

Someone quietly shifting the balance of power one move at a time.

Now it's a race to see if the boy and the mercenaries figure it out before the boss makes his move.
